MORPHIC GLOBAL OPPORTUNITIES FUND

Monthly Report February 2020

Fund Objective

The Fund seeks long term capital growth by investing in global shares and excluding direct investments in entities involved in environmental destruction, intensive animal farming, tobacco, alcohol, armaments and gambling. The Fund aims to have exposures in companies that are cheap, of high quality and where momentum supports the investment thesis. The Fund can also hedge to manage risk.

Ethical Investing in Focus

Regular readers will recall that one of the Fund's investments, Alstom, was a leader in rolling out hydrogen fuelled trains in Germany. Australia is turning its attention to monetising renewable energy via producing hydrogen via the newly announced "H2 under $2" goal. Tasmania has announced a $20m renewable Hydrogen fund, along with $30m in tax concessions to build a 1000MW hydrogen plant in Bell Bay or Burnie, to utilise Tasmania's abundant hydro and wind generation. Hopefully over time it leads to Australian jobs in export focused regional areas and continuing to export energy to the world – just not fossil fuel energy.

Portfolio review

The Morpic Global Opportunities Fund fell 2.9% in February, outperforming global markets which fell 4.6% in AUD terms. Global equities fell -8.1% in USD terms, as fears of the contagion effects from the Coronavirus drove share markets down. In one brutal week at the end of February, the market completed its fastest "correction" (defined as a 10% fall from the peak) ever. A falling Australian dollar versus the US dollar cushioned the losses somewhat.

Our position in funeral home operator, Service Corp, performed the best, presumably on the assumption of rising demand for its services. Also contributing was our position in Chinese listed Tencent, China's leading internet and Games Company, as people still need something to do whilst on quarantine across China.

The largest single detractor of performance for the month was our holding in Swiss listed computer periphery manufacturer, Logitech. A sell-side broker downgraded the stock ahead of its capital market day on concerns that coronavirus would impact both its ability to supply product and a lowering in demand in the short term.

Outlook

We wrote last month "Despite talk that Chinese GDP may slow to well less than 5% this year and large scale manufacturing shutdowns, markets are prepared to look through this and focus on the backdrop of fiscal and monetary easing. Whether this can be sustained in coming months remains to be seen".

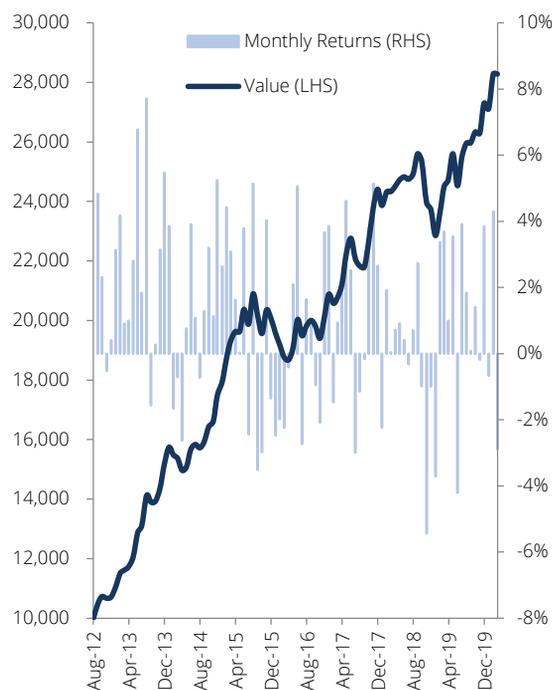

It took the Coronavirus leaving China to resolve this in the negative. Markets are now down 8-12% from their recent peaks as they adjust to expectations of slower global GDP in coming quarters. The response to this from fiscal and monetary authorities is uncertain.

It seems that a pandemic is one of the few things Trump, the Democrats, the Chinese and the Australian government can agree on, along with swift action. Interest rates are already being cut, talk of tax cuts and stimulus packages are underway already. So to us it would appear the market has shifted to a (large) range-bound market. Bouts of new virus outbreaks and poor data will drive it down, then periods of talk of recovery and stimulus will drive it up.

The size of the range is the hard part. A "technical" recession seems probable for parts of the world with a bounce back in late 2020 as inventory is rebuilt with a "catch-up" and demand returns. That would imply a circa 20-25% market fall from the peak (unlike "normal" recessions which is circa 35-45%), of which we've covered half that distance in those 6 days in February. New highs seem unlikely for now. Though the speed of the policy response needs to be consider in this analysis (traditionally the response is slow and lags).

The Fund finished the month with nearly 10% in cash to reflect the above uncertainties. This will be managed actively over the coming months
